

Commotion Group MD takes on the ultimate off-road motorcycle challenge in aid of four fantastic charities.

Enduro Africa is a unique and challenging motorcycle adventure in aid of 4 amazing causes - UNICEF, Sentebale – The Princes' Fund for Lesotho, the Nelson Mandela Children's Fund and Touch Africa.

The Enduro Africa route is constantly evolving, for this year motorcycle adventurers from all over the world will tackle 8 days of dusty and demanding riding through some of South Africa's most rugged and isolated terrain – the famous Wild Coast.

Enduro Africa aims to raise at least £150,000 for South Africa and Lesotho. Africa has so many issues that need addressing, many of which impact on society's most vulnerable people – the young and the old. Life is hard if you are poor and African. Enduro Africa has managed to make a donation of nearly £1,000,000 in just three years.

This year, Tim Coote, Managing Director of local education supply business Commotion Group, is taking part in the challenge. “In these depressing times of global recession, it is easy to focus on the economic problems threatening us in the developed world. But these troubles pale in comparison to the social, economic and health problems still facing the some of poorest people on the planet.”
