SENSORY BLOCKS FROM COMMOTION GROUP WIN BEST EARLY YEARS RESOURCE AT ERAS!

“The judges thought the concept was unusual, but can be used across the curriculum and age groups. They thought the product had been well thought-out for the age group, particularly for child initiated play, with consistency of colours and the use of different materials. It is robust and durable and could not fail to hold the children’s interest.”

The Sensory Blocks from Reflections On Learning are an innovative multi-sensory resource which support Knowledge & Understanding of the World, Exploration & Investigation, and Creative Development in the Early Years Foundation Stage. The set of 16 blocks comprises large hardwood surrounds containing beads, transparent acrylic, coloured sand and water/glitter filled pockets in four different shapes.

The Sensory Blocks have a variety of learning outcomes. They can be used to explore shape, light, sound, colour, and texture, for sorting and matching, as construction blocks, and to encourage children to express and demonstrate their discoveries. They work particularly well when used on a light box or panel, creating further interest and opportunity for exploration.

The bead-filled blocks each contain a varying quantity of beads, allowing for different sounds when each block is rattled. Used inside a feely bag there is an opportunity for precise sound and shape recognition. The sand and water-filled blocks can be rotated to fascinating effect as the contents fall to the lowest point, helping children to further explore and understand the shapes and material properties. Children are instantly fascinated by the Sensory Blocks and are keen to describe them, communicate the sequences they have discovered and explore their properties.

The Sensory Blocks also represent fantastic value for money – retailing at just £29.99 and presenting a wide range of uses across various learning outcomes and abilities.
